Resident Spotlight

Larry Banning

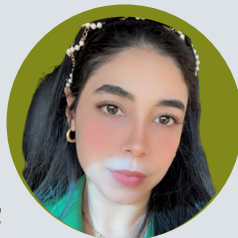

Meet Larry Banning, born July 13, 1938, in Springfield, Illinois. Larry married his high school sweetheart, Sandra, when they were just 18. They shared 67 wonderful years of marriage and raised three sons—Brett, Bryan, and Blair, who visits Larry every week. A proud alumnus of Millikin University,

Larry studied arts and psychology and later maintained close ties to his alma mater by renting property near campus for eight years. His career path was full of variety, from running a stamp store to working in insurance claims, then joining IBM to help with early computer technology, and eventually diving into the stock market. Larry enjoys photography, collecting books, art, music, studying philosophy, and going for long walks. Two of his favorite sayings are “We are our own worst enemy” and “Life is a problem-solving mission.” A fan of New York City, Larry once met Fats Domino and gospel singer Mavis Staples, and remains good friends with Bill Daul.

Larry’s life, filled with curiosity, creativity, and connection, continues to inspire everyone around him.
